Funding Eldercare Can Be the Greatest Crisis a Senior Will Ever Face

Paying for the costs associated with eldercare can be the greatest crisis an aging person will ever face. When the need for care arises, we lose our grasp on the three most important lifestyle concerns we have as we age:

- (1) Remaining independent
- (2) Having enough money
- (3) Maintaining good health

The costs associated with this care can wipe out a lifetime of savings, drain family resources, and destroy equity in a home.

It is surprising that roughly 1/3 of people over the age of 65 in this country have a potential for receiving a benefit. Less than 10%, however, of veterans or their survivors are actually receiving benefits.

Benefits for Veterans

The Department of Veterans Affairs offers a myriad of benefits to veterans. As a general rule, a veteran is defined as someone who served in the armed forces of the United States. Reservists and National Guard are generally not considered veterans for benefits purposes except under special conditions.

Most veterans are not aware of the eldercare benefits available through veterans health care, state veterans homes, home renovation grants, or from two disability income programs called Compensation and Pension. Veterans Pension, or more commonly known as the "Aid and Attendance Benefit", is particularly useful to seniors who are incurring significant medical costs. This benefit can provide additional money to pay for home care, assisted living, or nursing home care of the veteran or their surviving spouse.

VA helps Veterans and their families cope with financial challenges by providing supplemental income through the Veterans Pension benefit. Veterans Pension is a tax-free monetary benefit payable to low-income wartime Veterans and their survivors. Those with high medical expenses are also eligible.

Generally, for Veterans who served in World War II, the Korean Conflict, or the Vietnam era must have at least 90 days active duty during a period of war to qualify for VA Pension. In addition to meeting minimum service requirements, the Veteran must be:

- Age 65 or older, OR
- Totally and permanently disabled, AND
- Very low income, OR
- Paying for ongoing medical expenses.
